

CONTENTS

Introduction	xiii
Ige F. Dekker & Wouter G. Werner
Acknowledgements	xvii
List of contributors	xix
List of abbreviations	xxi

PART ONE

METHODOLOGY

Chapter 1 The Neomedieval Renaissance: Global Governance and International Law in the New Middle Ages	3
Jörg Friedrichs
1. Introduction	3
2. Conceptual critique	6
2.1 New medievalism	6
2.2 Global governance	11
3. Conceptual clarifications	16
3.1 New medievalism	16
3.2 Global governance	21
4. International law	25
5. Conclusion	31
6. Postscriptum : Co-operation and conflict among hegemonic projects	32
Chapter 2 Lawyers and Anthropologists: A Legal Pluralist Approach to Global Governance	37
Gerhard Anders
1. Introduction	38
2. The blindness of legal science	41

3. The normative lawyer and the reflective anthropologist	43
4. The potential of legal pluralism	46
5. Transnational – national – local	50
6. Two approaches to legal pluralism	52
7. Conclusions: Possibilities and restrictions of a legal pluralist perspective	54
 Chapter 3 From Territoriality to Functionality? Towards a Legal Methodology of Globalization	59
Andreas L. Paulus
1. Introduction	59
2. The “domestic analogy” and the community vision of international law	62
2.1 The Charter as a constitution of the international community?	63
2.2 Substantive international law	69
3. The unequal institutionalization of international society and its consequences for international law	74
3.1 Value clash and unequal institutionalization: the example of the Shrimp/Turtle case	80
3.2 The problem of overlapping jurisdiction	86
3.3 World trade and other values – integration or opposition?	88
4. Conclusion: From constitution to discourse?	93
 Chapter 4 The Will of the International Community as a Normative Source of International Law	97
Nicholas Tsagourias
1. Introduction	97
2. Theoretical distinctions and articulations	101
3. The concept of international community	107
4. The nature of the will of the international community	113
5. Conclusion	120

PART TWO STATE SOVEREIGNTY

Chapter 5 State Sovereignty and International Legal Discourse	125
Wouter G. Werner
1. Introduction	125
2. Some challenges to state sovereignty examined	128
2.1 State sovereignty criticized	128
2.2 The endurance of state sovereignty as a discursive practice	131
3. Sovereignty and international society	135
3.1 Sovereignty and the “Westphalian society”	135
3.2 Sovereignty and international responsibility	138
4. The reversibility thesis and the difference between concepts and conceptions	144
4.1 The two faces of sovereignty: Freedom to act and freedom from interference	144
4.2 The concept and conceptions of sovereignty	147
5. Sovereignty and non-intervention: the regulation of the use of force	151
6. Epilogue	155
 Chapter 6 Globalization and the International Criminal Court: Accountability and a New Conception of State	 159
Rod Jensen
1. Introduction	159
2. The sovereign state	162
3. The process of globalization	166
4. Developments in international criminal, humanitarian and human rights law	171
5. The creation of the ICC	178
6. Conclusion	183
 Chapter 7 The International Criminal Court and the Sovereign State	 185
Diane Marie Amann
1. Introduction	185
2. Evolution of the International Criminal Court	187

2.1	Following tradition: Securing sovereign consent	187
2.2	Breaking with tradition: Conferring non-consensual jurisdiction	189
3.	Conventional justifications for non-consensual jurisdiction	190
3.1	Individual, not state, responsibility	192
3.2	Enhanced legitimacy	193
3.3	Transfer of territorial jurisdiction	194
3.4	Universal jurisdiction	196
4.	Non-consensual jurisdiction and theories of the state	199
4.1	The realist premise	199
4.2	The relational response	201
5.	The International Criminal Court in light of the theories of state	204
6.	Conclusion	211

PART THREE

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Chapter 8	Governance by International Organizations: Rethinking the Normative Force of International Decisions	215
	Ige F. Dekker & Ramses A. Wessel
1.	Introduction	215
2.	The normative force of decisions of international organizations	220
2.1	Legal institutions	220
2.2	The legal competence of international organizations	222
2.3	Classifying the normative force of decisions	224
3.	Relations between legal systems of international organizations and legal systems of member states	227
3.1	Validity relations between legal systems	227
3.2	Applicability, effect and supremacy	231
4.	Conclusion	235

Chapter 9 International Judicial Bodies as Sources of Normativity: The WTO Dispute Settlement in Comparative Context	237
Tomer Broude
1. Assessing the evolving role of international judicial bodies	237
2. Relative judicial power and the legitimacy debate in the WTO	239
3. A framework for institutional comparison	242
4. Relative judicial power in the WTO DSS: A partial comparative analysis	245
4.1 Functional separation of the judiciary from other organs	245
4.1.1 The ICJ	245
4.1.2 The WTO DSS	247
4.2 Immediate reactive capacity of other organs	250
4.2.1 The ICJ	250
4.2.2 The WTO DSS	257
4.3 Long term reactive capacity of other organs	265
4.3.1 The ICJ	265
4.3.2 The WTO DSS	270
5. Conclusions	274
 Chapter 10 The European Court of Justice and Legal Pluralism: The Case Law on the “Four Freedoms” and the Pluralist Construction of the Legal System of the European Community	 277
Herman Voogsgaard
1. Introduction	277
2. Recognition of diplomas	281
3. Posting of workers within the context of the free provision of services	284
4. Purely internal situations	288
5. Conclusion	291

PART FOUR
NON-GOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS

Chapter 11 Non-State Actors: Undermining or Increasing the Legitimacy and Transparency of International Environmental Law	297
Joyeeta Gupta
1. Introduction	297
1.1 Global environmental governance	298
1.2 The environment, development and the law of sustainable development	299
2. The increasing role and participation of non-state actors in the climate change regime	302
3. The role of non-state actors and the implications for international law	306
3.1 Failure of the state?	306
3.2 Non-state actors and transparency	308
3.3 Non-state actors and (legal) legitimacy	311
3.4 Non-state actors, legitimacy and the assumptions of international law	312
3.5 Non-state actors, corporatism and democracy	314
4. Conclusion	318
 Chapter 12 NGOs, the International Criminal Court, and the Politics of Writing International Law	 321
Michael J. Struett
1. Introduction	321
2. Sovereignty issues with the International Criminal Court	325
3. NGOs and the social construction of treaty law practice	329
4. Status of states and NGOs in creating treaty law	330
5. Reinterpreting the rules of treaty writing	332
6. The power of NGOs	333
7. Institutions, institutional change and actors	334
8. NGO tactics: Expanding the discourse and legal expertise	335
9. The opening for the ICC? Discourse in the 1990s	338
10. NGO contributions to the Rome Treaty process	342
11. Conclusions	351

Chapter 13	Balancing Norms in Cyberspace: State and Non-State Actor Normativity in Cyberspace	355
	J.P. Mifsud Bonnici & C.N.J. de Vey Mestdagh
1.	Introduction	355
2.	Governance in cyberspace	359
2.1	States and cyberspace governance	360
2.1.1	Formal legislation	361
2.1.2	Informal state normativity	363
2.2	ISPs and cyberspace governance	364
2.2.1	Self-regulation of ISPs	365
2.2.2	ISPs, their customers and third parties	366
2.2.3	ISPs and accountability	367
3.	Discussion	370
3.1	Cyberspace	370
3.1.1	A-territorial nature	370
3.1.2	Communities of interest	371
3.1.3	Technological aspects	371
3.2	Globalization	373
3.2.1	Shifting foci of control	374
3.2.2	Privatization of markets	375
3.2.3	Privatization of normativity	376
3.2.4	Political inertia	377
4.	Conclusion	378
Index	381