

Detailed Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Contents—Summary	ix
Table of Cases	xix
Table of Treaties, Conventions, and Other International Instruments	xxiii
Prologue	1

INTRODUCTION

1. An Overture	5
Background	5
The book I wanted to write	7
The book I found I could not write	9
War and peace: my personal story	11
War and peace: the ubiquitous story	13
Marrying the two stories	15
The particular or the general?	15
International or domestic law?	17
Process or substance?	19
How I wrote the same book anyway	21
The book's story	22
Conclusion	23

I. UNDERSTANDING PEACE AGREEMENTS

2. The Rise in Peace Agreements and International Law	27
The rise in peace agreements	28
The role of international law	31
Human rights law	31
Self-determination law	35
Peacekeeping and the use of force	39
International law and transnational exchange	42
Conclusion	44
3. Peace Agreement Patterns	46
Definitions of peace agreements	47
Is there a requirement of a link to 'peace'?	48
Is there a requirement of time?	51

Is there a requirement of 'agreement'?	52
A working definition	53
Sources of peace agreements	54
Classification of peace agreements	55
Stage-function classification	56
Pre-negotiation agreements	56
Substantive/ framework agreements	60
Implementation agreements	62
Difficulties with classification	64
Mediation of peace agreements	66
UN Secretary-General Representatives	67
Other United Nations roles	68
Regional organizations	69
Groupings of 'neighbours' or 'friends'	72
'Neutral' countries acting in the 'common good'	73
Individuals	74
Non-governmental organizations (NGOs)	74
Civil society	75
Conclusion	76
4. The Peace Agreement in Historical Context	77
The story of international law	78
The story of peace agreements	79
Pre-classical period	80
Archaic peace treaties	80
Peace treaties and early Roman law	82
Peace treaties in the early Middle Ages	84
Peace treaties in the latter Middle Ages	86
Classical period	87
Interwar years	90
Modern period: 1945–1989	93
UN Security Council Resolution	95
Domestic peace processes	96
Decolonization agreements	97
Peculiar peace treaties	99
Pre-contemporary peace agreements	101
Contemporary peace agreements: convergence and divergence	102
Convergence	102
Divergence	103
Conclusion	104
5. The Contemporary Peace Agreement	105
Conceptualizing peace agreement solutions	105

State redefinition	106
Disaggregation of power	106
Dislocation of power	106
Hybrid self-determination	108
Settling secessionist conflicts	108
State redefinition	109
Disaggregation of power	110
Dislocation of power	111
Beyond irredentism: settling other ethnic conflicts	115
State redefinition	115
Disaggregation of power	115
Dislocation of power	116
Beyond identity: settling authoritarian conflicts	118
State redefinition	119
Disaggregation of power	120
Dislocation of power	121
Conclusion	122

II. PEACE AGREEMENTS AS LEGAL DOCUMENTS: TOWARDS A LEX PACIFICATORIA

6 The Difficulties of Legal Classification	127
Peace agreements as international agreements	128
Armed opposition groups	130
Indigenous peoples	132
Sub-state regions and minorities	134
Legal status and international law	135
How and why do we classify?	136
From legal form to legal effects	136
The inescapable importance of positive law	138
Conclusion	142
7. Peace Agreement Legal Form	144
Contrived treaty form	145
Contrived constitutional form	149
No legal form?	153
Domestic legislation	154
Contrived 'agreement' and UN SC resolutions	155
The alternative challenge of legal form	157
Conclusion	160
8. Peace Agreement Obligations	162

Precision for short-term goals	163
Precision and ceasefires	163
Precision and transitional institutions	164
Precision and permanent institutions	164
Constructive ambiguity	166
The alternative compliance challenge: legalization in transition	169
The political bargain v constitutional framework dilemma	171
The normalization v rule of law dilemma	171
The alternative drafting challenge	172
Conclusion	173
9. Peace Agreement Third Party Enforcement	175
Third parties signing peace agreements	176
Third parties as external guarantors	177
Third parties as self-guarantors: second parties?	178
Third parties as norm promoters: fourth parties?	179
Delegation of authority to interpret and enforce peace agreements	181
An alternative conceptualization: hybrid legal pluralism	187
Legal pluralism	187
Hybridity	190
A distinctive rationale	191
Conclusion	193
III. PEACE AGREEMENTS AND THE REVISION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW: THE FORCE OF THE LEX
10. Constitutionalizing Conflict	199
The constitutionalization of conflict: 'Clausewitz in reverse'	200
The role of hybridity	204
Internal and external self-determination	205
Process and substance	207
Representative and participatory democracy	209
Hybridity in action	213
Conclusion	216
11. The New Law of Hybrid Self-determination	218
The 'new law' of hybrid self-determination: a statement	219
Narrative, norm and nomos	220
Hybrid self-determination as developing law	221
Norm-creep and legal standards	221

Elections	221
Minority rights	222
Participation	223
Norm-creep and the narration of law	225
Badinter Commission, Former Yugoslavia	225
Places that do not exist	226
Kosovo	227
Israel-Palestine	229
Two readings of the new law	231
A transition to a post-sovereign order?	231
A creative and progressive transition?	232
A transition to liberal democracy?	233
A conservative and duplicitous transition?	234
Conclusion	236
12. The New Law of Transitional Justice	239
The 'new law' of transitional justice: a statement	240
Narrative, norm and nomos	240
Transitional law as developing law	241
Peace agreement practice	241
The narration of normative compliance	242
The process of norm-creep	243
Human rights law	243
Humanitarian law	244
The United Nations and norm-creep	246
International criminal justice	248
New law as 'regime merge'	249
Restorative justice approach	250
The bifurcated approach	251
The combined approach	252
Voiding amnesty in the event of a return to violence?	253
Two readings of the new law	255
Transitional justice as creative, progressive and justice-promoting?	255
Transitional justice as exceptional and manipulated?	256
Conclusion	257
13. The New Law of Third Party Enforcement	259
The 'new law' of third party enforcement: a statement	260
Narrative, norm and nomos	260
The legal framework	260
Not an academic matter	262
Authorization of third party roles	264
Fluctuating consent	264

Fluctuating statehood	265
Developing law	265
Third party accountability	268
Humanitarian law	269
Human rights law	271
Developing new law and regime merge	272
Domestic constitutional law	275
'Complex accountability'	277
Two readings of the new law	278
Third parties as enablers of positive social change?	278
Third party involvement as imperialist and neo-colonial?	279
Conclusion	280

CONCLUSION

14. Lex Pacificatoria: Marriage of Heaven and Hell	285
The story so far	285
The peace agreement as lex	286
A theory of peace agreement constitutionalism	287
Development of the lex through the dynamic of regulation	287
The nature of the lex pacificatoria	287
Persuasive authority	288
Common principles of law	288
Ius gentium	289
Transnational contract	289
The peacemakers	290
Marriage of heaven and hell	291
Metaconstitutional discourse	291
Implementing peace agreements	293
Re-interpreting the last battle	294
'Doing good'	295
Commitment to legal pluralism	295
Commitment to constitutional pluralism	296
Commitment to recognizing law's performative dimension	297
Commitment to negotiated justice	298
Commitment to 'complex accountability'	299
Commitment to enabling moral and political imagination	299
Conclusion: 'Epilogues'	301

APPENDICES (with Catherine O'Rourke)

Appendix 1 Peace Agreement Collection: Description of Content, Sources and Format	305
---	-----

Detailed Table of Contents

xvii

Appendix 2 Intrastate Peace Agreements	310
Appendix 3 Interstate Peace Agreements addressing Intrastate Conflict	338
Appendix 4 Interstate Peace Agreements	341
Bibliography	345
Index	371