

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	xi
1. The First Step	3
2. How Much and For How Long?	8
3. Where Negotiations Have Led	14
4. Where Do We Go from Here?	20
5. Reflections on the Role of the Private Sector	27
6. Elections, Institutions, Democracy	32
7. Post-Election Realities	38
8. The Campaign Against “Islamic Terror”	44
9. Modernity, Information, and Governance	51
10. Total Rejection and Total Acceptance Are Equivalent	57
11. Mandela, Netanyahu, and Arafat	63
12. The Theory and Practice of Banning Books and Ideas	69
13. On Visiting Wadie	74
14. Uprising Against Oslo	108
15. Responsibility and Accountability	113
16. Intellectuals and the Crisis	119
17. Whom to Talk to	125
18. The Real Meaning of the Hebron Agreement	132
19. The Uses of Culture	139
20. Loss of Precision	144
21. The Context of Arafat’s American Visit	151
22. Deir Yassin Recalled	156
23. Thirty Years After	160

24. The Debate Continues.....	167
25. The Next Generation?.....	173
26. Are There No Limits to Corruption?.....	177
27. Reparations: Power and Conscience?	182
28. Bombs and Bulldozers.....	188
29. Strategies of Hope	193
30. Israel at a Loss	200
31. Bases for Coexistence	205
32. Iraq and the Middle East Crisis.....	210
33. Isaiah Berlin: An Afterthought.....	216
34. Palestine and Israel: A Fifty-Year Perspective	223
35. The Challenge of Israel: Fifty Years On.....	229
36. The Problem Is Inhumanity	234
37. Gulliver in the Middle East.....	239
38. Making History: Constructing Reality.....	244
39. Scenes from Palestine	249
40. End of the Peace Process, or Beginning Something Else.....	256
41. Art, Culture, and Nationalism.....	260
42. Fifty Years of Dispossession	266
43. New History, Old Ideas	273
44. The Other Wilaya.....	278
45. Breaking the Deadlock: A Third Way	282
46. The Final Stage	287
47. The End of the Interim Arrangements	293
48. Incitement	298
49. West Bank Diary	303
50. Truth and Reconciliation.....	312
Permissions Acknowledgments	322
Index	326