

CONTENTS

| | Page |
|---|-------------|
| Introduction | 1-4 |
| I. Legal Training | 5-6 |
| II Colonial Attitudes and Approaches | 7-11 |
| III The Emergence of the Modern Legal Profession | 11-20 |
| IV Democratisation and Excellence | 21-28 |
| V Language and Democratisation | 28-29 |
| VI Institutions of Instruction | 30-34 |
| VII Rationalisation of Legal Education | 35-37 |
| VIII Curriculum Development | 37-41 |
| IX Teaching Methodologies and Examinations | 41-45 |
| X Legal Literature | 46-48 |
| XI English Competence | 49-53 |
| XII The Language of the Courts | 54-57 |
| XIII Bilingualism | 58-59 |

| | Page | |
|-------|--|----------------|
| XIV | The Language of the Law: Its Two Dimensions | 59-61 |
| XV | Power and the Profession | 62-63 |
| XVI | De-Professionalisation? | 64-65 |
| XVII | The Language of the Law: Implications for Law Schools | 66-67 |
| XVIII | Language and the New Legal Order . . . | 67-69 |
| XIX | Legal Education and Legal Activism . . . | 70-72 |
| XX | The Examination System | 72-73 |
| XXI | Access, Response and Privilege | 73-77 |
| XXII | Practical and Creative Skills | 77-89 |
| XXIII | Objectives and Goals | 89-93 |
| XXIV | The Role of the Law School | 93-95 |
| XXV | The Role of Universities | 95-98 |
| XXVI | Legal Education: A Broad Framework | 98-102 |
| XXVII | Conclusion | 103-104 |
| | BIBLIOGRAPHY | 105-110 |